GENERAL INTRODUCTION

Amazing that the global upheaval has created ripples through the JIL season. Initially the committee thought that by having July and August as a two month break from the league teams would be able to cover for holidays and etc. However, as has been shown this year it seems that people now are taking holidays at different times as school breaks vary. This coupled with a dramatic downturn in business, release of many employees and job transfers has meant that some teams lost several key players and struggled in June.

Is this a start of a three month break or a completely different timing schedule for the matches in 2016?

The impact of these problems meant one team 'lent' players to another team [in fact the team they were playing] and then suffered a defeat!! Another two teams decided to totally rearrange and ended up playing a month later and also at a different course. These decisions brought to light the questions about the scoring for teams failing to fulfill their numbers and [here we go again] handicapping.

This definitely means that 2016 planning is going to need input from Team captains about their squad strength / depth and also thoughts on how to cover for holidays.

By-the-way no apologies for late issue of newsletter as most will have forgotten about June and so the scribe and editor have been able to invent or embellish stories such that fiction is now cloaked in mystique and the stories probably now are facts. Additionally it is more timely reminder to captains to gather your forces for the next round.

Comment about handicaps

The hairy-chestnut rears its head again as complaints come in about people having ridiculous handicaps [always on the too high side]. First let's be clear that handicaps are the responsibility of the player first and foremost followed by the Team Captain. There are several groups that track handicaps and other players are administered by their home club but for the rest it is down to a degree of honesty. What was introduced some time back by the JIL Committee was recording each match and players and their handicaps. Where a player was shown to have changed handicap by more than a shot or two this was pointed out to the Team Captain and comments would be made in the Newsletter. Can this be improved? Of course if every player completed every hole and handed in a full recorded scorecard and a scoring system was introduced. Is this going to happen? Of course not as some holes are conceded before the other player ever gets to the hole and many matches are stopped once a result has been achieved. So what is the answer? Probably the best method would be to take up the Australian 'sledding' tactics and try to brow-beat the player whose handicap you believe to be incorrect. Your comments and suggestions are welcome to see if this topic can be bedded down once and for all!

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

The Committee is pleased to let all JIL-ers know that last year's MVP has taken that award to new heights as he has risen from this sound platform foundation and has just been crowned Jagorawi Men's Champion 2015.

Congratulations to Joseph Perries [Tin Cups]

MATCH REPORTS - JUNE

TEE SET - TINCUPS: 8 - 2

So top of the table TeeSet found themselves up against TinCups so this looked to be a 'Clash of the Titans' and definitely one of the key matches for deciding the end of season standings. Leading off in a rematch of last year was The Hack Simon up against 'Soon to be Champ' Joseph. Joseph played to handicap but the stroke differential was just enough to allow Simon to creep through 2:1. Joseph d'C has been playing good golf recently but he was shocked when a young Indonesian female with strong Yankee accent strode to the tee and transform the golf ball into dust as she crunched her first drive off the blocks with sparkling dust particles left behind. Yes TinCups had brought back their powerhouse Tika who quickly adapted to the conditions and shot a level par round until she had won the match 4:2. So singles ended all square. Then Captain Smoothee and V-C Hole-in-One Bags made some tactical errors in pairings or was it the supreme tactical efficiency of 'Nearly-everything' Ric. Whatever happened the TeeSet pairing ran away with every one of the pairs. Anlo/Divja continued with their great teamwork as they strolled past James/Bags 4:3 despite not much handicap differential. The main separator seems to be that TinCups thought it was a bogey competition; which they would have won easily whereas TeeSet considered pars more acceptable. Chris/OldMan Geoff (although you would say that when you saw him come along for the 45 hole challenge a couple of weeks back) saw off Fuku [yes he won the long drive but his putting followed in a similar vein] and Sebastian by a close 1 up. In fact this went to their final hole where any result was possible but the TeeSetters got the vital par to seal the fate of TinCups. 'Nearly everything' paired up with yet another Chris and took on John/ 'If I tell you' Bob and once again this resulted in a 1 up result though this time the final three holes could easily have changed that result

SANDBAGGERS - JLI: 2 - 8

Humm what can we say about this one. Until the final moments JLI were running short of players whereas Sandbaggers had come out in force. In order not to take points Grumpy 'loaned' players and dropped the regulation about previous JIL outings so the JLI had sufficient to contest each of the matches. So some of these names might appear to be in the incorrect team but this is as recorded. Grumpy once again took the mantle of leading the team from the front but this time it was only metaphorically speaking as he met his match against Dean and fell 2 down. Reckon that Grumpy will be recharged for the next round as he will be back from a long break and HotWax will be administering the diet again. Tim had to give a bundle of shots to Chris, who is a little mercurial in his golf scores, but on the day Chris took command from the first hole and ended up a 3:2 winner Jiro/ Joe were against 'Peacock' Fernando and John but what ever happened here can only be guessed. From the first hole JLI never lost any hole and only were kept to a halve on a few as JLI galloped to 6:5 --- early beers. Edwin/ Oliver saw Barly/Tony take an early lead and despite clawing back a couple of holes the gap widened like a chasm until at 4:2 enough was enough and the Sandbaggers felt truly sandbagged. Definitely this looks to have been closer than the result makes it appear as both Oliver and Tony played at net par and so it came down to Ham&Egging being the reason for the end result. Ray/Dale had a little guffaw as they came up against Max/Luis and at 14 Ray was giving shots to everyone. This didn't daunt his scoring and he came in one under handicap but Dale only contributed to a couple of holes. However, this was sufficient to obtain the only Sandbaggers pints with a steam roller victory of the infamous 'dog license' 7:6.

SENTUL SWINGERS - CLOGGIES: 3 - 7

Both teams had several changes and it would be interesting to see if the magical 4 points could be bettered by Sentul. As HotWax was sunning herself on the couple of summer days in Holland the organizing was left to BB.

MATCH REPORTS

Best score of the day was from Pradeep [Cloggie] with net 65

Only Eagle recorded was from Pradeep [Cloggie] on Hole#10

Most Birdies [natural] were from 'Just Lucky' Simon [Cloggie] with 3 and several players managed two

Highest recorded score [plenty of 'no-returns' for holes from every team] was by TinCups John with a lovely 10

Thought that she was being bold as she told her hubby he would be leading off in the singles a long time since we saw Peter taken command from this lead position. However, he soon fell back into the comfort zone against the 'canny caggy Norse' Viggo and played to handicap and eased to a 4:3 victory. Nick 'Single Malt' went for his early practice as he again was back into the singles against Henrik. It seems that maybe he took too much out of himself and Henrik was continually winning holes and only once he secured the 5:3 victory Henrik let Nick start to play good golf. Howard/Greg had the dubious honour of playing against the Ozzie/Japanese-combo pf BB Sharon and Robotic Rio. This was definitely one of the matches of the day with leads switching several times but neither side being convincing in claiming the teebox. Robotic was finding his old form and played steadily throughout [ending up just under handicap] but this was matched by the TicTac golf from Sentul pairings. Once again the final result was determined on the last hole where the Cloggie pair got the vital par to claim a rescuing half. [[Editors note: this was the neatest scorecard of the day and made it so easy to see everything properly recorded and in legible handwriting]]. So Sentul now already had bagged 3 points so things looked promising. 'Beamer' Bob and 'young Rizzoli' had a tough match against 'just lucky' Simon and 'Oh so correct' William [before he went off to break his arm !!!]. As it turned out the high handicappers of Rizzoli and William produced the better golf [shooting nearer to their handicaps] and even with Beamer outscoring Just Lucky the combo of Cloggies produced the result and secured a 2 up victory. In the final match Peter/'Blacksheep' Joe had the 'ScaryDriver'/'Colonial Pradeep as opposition. Despite the result being a 6:5 Cloggie win the scorecard shows that not one person played above their handicap and one player from each pairing shot a few shots under. This clearly demonstrates that if a pair can score well on different holes then they have a great chance of securing a comfortable win. The conclusion is that Sentul once again fail to crack that 4 pointer they need this season.

POCKSIA - MADDOGS: 4 - 6

As this match was rearranged and in fact played at Matoa the editor / scribe have no scorecards and so below is what has been received via the carrier pigeon

Richard Ledgard beaten by Iris 0 - 2
A. Livingstone beaten by Cuni 0 - 2

Doubles

Jeremy and Glen won against Arvind and Yati 2 - 0
Scott and Debbie won against Malcolm and Geoff 2 - 0
John Lee and Carolyn Taylor lost to Keith Johnson and Norman 0 - 2.

SKILL HITS

Long drives have the men's bash at 260mts going to Fuku [TinCups] and the ladies to Tetty [Pocksia?]
--- However, not certain that this is correct as the recorded distance is a long-spit of 100mts.

If this is correct then Tetty should receive an additional prize for claiming the shortest long drive since the award was first given

Several names appear on the Nearest-to-thePin and gradually the 6mts became 5 mts and eventually Barly [JLI] managed 3.90mts to take home the prize
